DETAILED INFORMATION:

Due to the Coronavirus and subsequent shipping restrictions being placed in certain areas of China, we have been informed that there will be a supply interruption of Micro couplers and end caps starting immediately until the quarantine is lifted.

We have our current safety stock levels set at 2 months for these items, and at this time we don't expect immediate impacts except for the following two items, which are expected to have a shortage if demand stays at or above recent levels.

We do not expect any performance changes on these items, but be advised the tip colors may vary from our standard colors for this interim period until our normal supplier is able to ship.

We are monitoring other stocked items as well and will keep everyone informed as to any additional procurement changes due to this situation.
