Keeping Our Employees and Your Business Healthy

Dear valued nVent HOFFMAN distributors,

As we all work to try and keep our families, employees and communities safe, we are adapting to a rapidly changing environment.

As of now, our plants and distribution centers are operational. We have put in place policies to enable as many people as possible to work remotely to ensure that we limit the people at our facilities to only essential production and distribution employees. We are also establishing cleaning and sanitizing procedures to help protect our employees who must work in our facilities.

We are fortunate to have multiple production sites and distribution centers, as well as our leading network of distributors, focused on serving customers who are still operating across many industries. We are doing everything we can to be able to deliver the products our customers need.

We are working to build more stock of standard products. In case we do experience disruptions in production or distribution due to the Corona Virus (COVID-19), we are recommending distributors look at current inventory levels to be sure you have adequate stock of high running products. Working together, we will do our very best to serve our customers during this challenging time.

Best regards,

Karla Leis
VP & GM, nVent HOFFMAN
