

How do your campus facilities meet student and faculty expectations?

HIGHER EDUCATION SPACE UTILIZATION

With research highlighting the impact of flexible learning spaces on student outcomes, there is an increased demand for multi-purpose areas that can be configured for different activities and controlled for comfort, safety and efficiency. Flexible facilities enhance the productivity of students as well as faculty and staff.

A TECHNOLOGY-ENABLED CAMPUS

In order to optimize your campus facilities, you must determine WHO will utilize WHAT technology. Then determine WHERE this technology will be located, allowing you to justify WHY this will benefit the overall goals of the institution.

WHAT WE HEAR

Challenges from the various higher education stakeholders are:

Adapting to a CHANGING STUDENT BODY

Broadening FUNDING SOURCES for campus improvement

Catering to increase of NON-ACADEMIC FACILITIES

Enhancing ACTIVE LEARNING ENVIRONMENTS

Maintaining LEGACY BUILDING INFRASTRUCTURE

Only 50% of new higher education construction is for academic purposes.

FLEXIBLE CAMPUS FACILITIES

The Anixter Approach

Anixter's approach provides a clear set of guidelines and best practices for optimizing various spaces throughout your campus.

- Learning Environments
 Capitalize on the impact of learning space design on education outcomes by integrating pro A/V, smart lighting, wireless, access and other solutions.
- Faculty Areas
 Create flexible work areas that can support private and groups functions, in addition to academic and scientific research.
- Staff Offices
 Provide executive and professional spaces to enhance workforce productivity and efficiency.
- Collaborative Spaces
 Enable dynamic environments that simplify network access, sharing of content and conferencing demands.
- Technical Rooms
 Plan the appropriate real estate for electrical facilities, telecommunications rooms, data centers and IT resources.
- Non-Academic Facilities
 Support retail, residential, athletic and other facilities around campus with best-in-class network infrastructure solutions.
